

ABSTRACT

According to the invention, the cooling capacity of an electronic component (4) may be improved with simple means, whereby the electronic component (4) is provided with a housing cup (2), produced by an extrusion method, the cup base (7) of which is formed to give a cooling body (8), integral with the housing cup (2).